

Faculty Position with PBI Education (Remote-Based)

Position Description:

PBI Education is expanding and seeking a faculty member to teach our multi-day, remedial CME courses. Courses that have a faculty opening include Professional Boundaries and Ethics, Elevating Civility and Communication, and Ethics and Professionalism.

This is a remote-based independent contractor position. Courses are scheduled months in advance and are facilitated virtually on either a Friday-Sunday or Saturday-Sunday schedule via interactive videoconferencing technology. Faculty should have availability to teach a minimum of four courses annually to be considered for this role. It is an ideal position for someone with a healthcare professional regulation background, seeking an opportunity to contribute to the field of professionalism in health care while maintaining a remote-based, flexible, part-time schedule from anywhere in North or South America.

About the Courses:

These courses are for clinicians who have problems maintaining professional boundaries, ethical/professional expectations, or civility standards. Click the below to explore each course:

- Civility and Communication

All PBI Education courses are process-oriented. That means that the bulk of the work that participants must do, guided by their faculty member, relates to the “how, why, and when” of their infractions, and not simply the “what.” Therefore, the faculty member must have certain sensitivities as well as the skills necessary to facilitate a small group of intelligent and successful adult learners who are grappling with serious professional problems that are rooted in interpersonal dynamics. Although this work can be challenging, the opportunity to witness course participants undergo tremendous change and recommit to professional ideals is exceedingly rewarding and heartening.

About PBI Education:

Since 2001, PBI Education (Professional Boundaries, Inc. – dba PBI Education) has been dedicated to providing high-quality continuing education programs. The goal of PBI programs is to equip course participants to become more responsible, safer professionals, demonstrated by increased competence, improved performance, and an elevated commitment to public safety. Our expert faculty are committed to excellence in education and an individualized approach to teaching. Because health care concerns everyone from all backgrounds, PBI Education cultivates an inclusive, equitable, and welcoming culture. We encourage job applicants from traditionally underrepresented groups.

Requirements:

- Desire to help licensed professionals overcome past professional lapses in judgment and move forward in their careers as safer professionals
- Ability to foster a virtual classroom environment that invites participants at various stages in their career (e.g., students, post-graduate trainees, seasoned clinicians) and those with strong personalities to disclose openly and honestly and to be vulnerable

- Comfort with discussing sensitive topics
- Availability to teach courses offered Friday-Sunday or Saturday-Sunday
- Be in good standing with your respective regulatory agency and the professional community with no former disciplinary history
- Without any concurrent conflicts of interest, such as having a current active working relationship with any regulatory entity
- Licensed or formerly licensed healthcare professional or administrative healthcare attorney

Preferred Qualifications:

- Experience in professional regulation, specifically licensing, discipline, enforcement, professional rehabilitation, etc.
- Familiarity with principle- and virtue-based medical ethics or bioethics and ethical reasoning and judgment in the context of clinical care
